

ETHEL CROKER'S MARRIAGE

IS SHE RICHARD'S DAUGHTER,
AND WHO IS THE HUSBAND?

Record in Hoboken Justice's Office Says
Richard's Daughter and a Joseph P.
Breen Were Married by Him—Breen,
Durland Groom, Says "Not Me."

The friends of Miss Ethel Croker, daughter of Richard Croker, were surprised to learn yesterday that on last Thursday afternoon there was a marriage performed by Justice of the Peace Samuel Engler at his office in River street, Hoboken, the records of which show that the justice had married "Miss Ethel Croker, daughter of Richard Croker, to John P. Breen, son of Thomas J. Breen and Mary McGraw."

There is a John J. Breen, stable manager for A. C. Schwartz and his brother, N. L. Schwartz, brokers, who spends most of his time around Durland's riding academy in West Sixty-sixth street when he isn't accompanying young women riders around the park in the capacity of groom. Miss Croker has known this John Breen for about three years and has ridden around the park with him many times. Yesterday Breen received congratulations all day from employees at Durland's, but he steadily denied that he and Miss Croker had been married.

Neither Miss Croker nor her brother Howard, with whom she lives at 5 East Seventy-fourth street, was at home to callers yesterday afternoon or evening. Late on Saturday evening, however, it is said that she was seen down at Cedarhurst and was asked whether she and Breen had been married. She denied the story angrily. Breen said last night to a SUN reporter that he also was at Cedarhurst on Saturday afternoon and had seen Miss Croker watching the steeplechase races from an automobile, but that she had not spoken to her.

Breen went over to Justice Engler's office in Hoboken yesterday afternoon when told by reporters of the story of his marriage. The justice of the peace said he had married a man named Breen to a Miss Ethel Croker on Thursday, but that the riding academy man who visited him yesterday was not the same Breen.

Breen was found in a restaurant on Columbus avenue near the academy last night at dinner and seemed much disturbed over the story that he and Miss Croker had been married. He is a medium sized Irishman, about 37 years old, and has been in this country fifteen years, he says. He still has a good deal of his brogue.

"I can't explain it," Breen said after admitting that he had known Miss Croker for about three years, but denying the marriage. "The records I saw in Hoboken to-day have the name 'John P. Breen, son of Thomas J. Breen, and Mary McGraw,' and the man married said he had been married before, but refused to tell whether he was a widower or divorced."

"My name is John J. Breen and my father's name is John J. Breen. My mother's name was Anna McGraw, not Mary McGraw. And I never have been married. But I'm going to be married in about two weeks," Breen added.

"To whom?" Breen was asked.

"Oh, she hasn't a name yet," he answered with a smile.

Breen says that on Thursday afternoon he went out to ride in the park about 5 o'clock. Friends of his at Durland's yesterday said that they saw Miss Croker riding in the park about 5 o'clock the same afternoon. According to Justice of the Peace Engler, the Breen and Miss Croker whom he married came to his office between 4 and 5 o'clock that afternoon and were married.

"And besides," the Breen of Durland's said last night, "Miss Croker is a Catholic and so am I. Catholics always are married by a priest, you know, not by a justice of the peace."

Longers around the Hoboken end of the Hudson tube on Thursday say they noticed a man of medium height with dark hair walking up and down nervously for a time near the exit of the tube and that he soon was joined by a "tall, slender blonde girl." Miss Croker hardly can be called tall and slender and her hair is a dark auburn. When they were married the Hoboken Miss Croker gave her age as 21 years and her birthday as April 21. Richard Croker's daughter is 21 years old but she was born on July 15. After the marriage the couple came back to New York through the Hudson tunnel.

The Breen married on Thursday gave his residence as Meyer's Hotel, Hoboken. Breen of Durland's lives at 4 West Sixty-sixth street, across the street from the riding school. One of the contracting parties in a New Jersey marriage must acknowledge a residence in that State.

Mrs. Richard Croker is now in Paris and Mr. Croker arrived in England on last Friday after his long visit to this country. It is said that Miss Croker intends to sail for Europe next Wednesday accompanied by a housekeeper who has been with the family for years.

"Maybe she is," Breen said last night when asked about Miss Croker's trip. "One thing I know," he continued, as he started out from the restaurant to go to a vaudeville theatre, and that is that I'm not going to sail for Europe on any old Wednesday."

COUNTESS DE SZILLINSKY WEBS.
Daughter of Col. Frank J. Hecker Bride of Theodore Gould Fletcher.

DETROIT, May 1.—Theodore Gould Fletcher of the Fletcher Hardware Company and Countess de Szillinsky, daughter of Col. Frank J. Hecker, were married on Saturday afternoon at Col. Hecker's home.

Miss Hecker was prominent socially in Washington in 1900 and there met the count, then secretary of the Austrian Legation. After their marriage they retired to the Count's estate in Austria, but soon rumors were heard of disagreements and six months later the bride returned to her parents in Detroit. The Countess made another attempt to live with her husband, but another half year brought stories of more trouble. Col. Hecker went to Austria and brought his daughter home and a divorce was granted in 1905.

NO BOATS FOR PARK LAKE.
With Over the Boating Contract in Prospect Park.

For the first time in thirty years, during the season, there were no boats operated yesterday on the lake in Prospect Park. The privilege has been held for a long time by Frank L. Haggerty, who paid $7,500 for it. When bids were received by the Park Department on April 20 Haggerty was outbid, the winner offering $10,000 a year. The privilege is good for four years.

The date for the change was yesterday. On Saturday night Haggerty had his boats, 131 rowboats and four electric launch, moored near Duck Island preparatory to moving them. The new owner failed to file the necessary bond, there will be no boats on the lake until the 15th.

Many persons went to the park and tried to rent boats as usual.

FIRED ON BY SHAD THIEVES.

Robbers Surprised at the Nets Make Use of Revolvers and Get Away.

Three members of a gang of thieves who have stolen large numbers of shad from nets in New York Bay off Bayonne and caused the fishermen loss by destroying the nets this spring were surprised while at work yesterday morning about 4:30 o'clock by Ruben Cadmus of 133 West Twenty-fourth street, who has fished in the waters for more than forty years, having succeeded his father, who fished for half a century.

Cadmus had nets a short distance from the Robbins Reef lighthouse, and he and his son Louis were on their way in a rowboat to lift the nets when they saw the three thieves.

"Just my luck!" muttered Cadmus. "Another time I would have my shot gun along."

When he was about 200 yards away from the nets Cadmus stood up in his boat and yelled:

"Hey, there, you robbers, you just leave them nets alone! They belong to me and those fish are mine."

The thieves had raised one of the nets and were helping themselves to shad when they heard the warning. One of the thieves took a revolver from his pocket and fired at Cadmus. His example was followed by his companions and a dozen shots were sent toward Cadmus and his son. One of the bullets struck an ear six inches from the elder Cadmus's head and chipped off a piece of the wood.

"Gettin' kinder warn, Louis. Guess we had better stop. Hang my luck in leaving my gun home!" said Cadmus. He looked around the bay, and off the Bayonne shore he saw a motorboat skimming along. In it was John Hintz, a fisherman from Greenville. Cadmus hailed him and Hintz headed toward the nets.

"Thieves robbing my nets again!" shouted Cadmus when Hintz got within shouting distance and Hintz put on more power. Meanwhile the thieves saw the motorboat making for them and they dropped the net overboard and two of them bent to the oars and headed for shore. The third man stood in the stern and every few moments sent a shot toward either the motorboat or that containing the fishermen.

After Hintz had picked up Cadmus and his son he started in pursuit of the thieves, who had got a good start. They reached the old Van Buskirk farm, now part of the Standard Oil plant, on a neck of land off Constable Hook and quickly landed, dragging the shad with them. They went 200 feet to the company's railroad spur, where they boarded a freight car and began shooting at their pursuers. The elder Cadmus started ashore as soon as the motorboat touched, but he stopped when a bullet whizzed by his ear and he heard:

"Old man, if you get out of that boat I will shoot you dead."

The thieves kept their pursuers off shore by sending bullets their way every few minutes, and when their ammunition was gone they slid along between freight cars and escaped to Constable Hook.

SPEEDERS IN QUEENS.

Fifteen Gathered in by the Police—B. C. Vanderbilt Admits Going Too Fast.

The police of Queens got after automobile speeders yesterday afternoon along the Merrick road and arrested fifteen. The roads were in such good condition that drivers of motor cars said they didn't seem to realize how fast they were going. There were a few cars that escaped.

Several of the speeders were taken in on Saturday were arraigned yesterday in the Jamaica police court before Magistrate Connolly. They were all held for Special Sessions. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, who was among the number, appeared for himself and admitted that he was exceeding the limit of the law. The others were Louis Laroche of 471 Park avenue, Morgan Wing of 22 William street, ex-District Attorney Charles Otis of Yorkers and Warren S. Jarvis of 1902 Pacific street, Brooklyn.

In most cases yesterday chauffeurs were driving the machines. A few owners, however, were driving themselves. They were Frank M. Randall, 643 Riverside Drive, ex-State Senator Joseph Bailey of Patchogue, F. Hollis White of Hotel Marlborough, Henry Haller, 120 West 120th street, the Bronx, and Brandon Hendricks of 153 West Seventy-fifth street.

The chauffeurs arrested were employed by Jesse Weinberg, 313 West Seventy-fifth street; E. P. Sterns, 303 West 105th street; George Einstein, 45 East Seventy-second street; S. I. Williams, 343 Riverside Drive; Moses Zimmerman, 1103 Madison avenue; and Abraham Steinman, 30 West Seventy-second street. They will all be arraigned this morning in the Jamaica police court.

The Weather.

May 2.—The storm which was over the lower lakes on Saturday moved over the St. Lawrence valley yesterday attended by somewhat warmer weather over the northern New England States and Canada, with brisk onshore winds on the north Atlantic coast. Elsewhere on the coast it was fair and cooler. It was fair in the Northern States, except for scattered showers in the extreme Northwest.

The temperatures were higher in the Gulf States west of Florida and in the Rocky Mountain districts. In the extreme Northwest it was cooler.

In this city the day was fair and cooler, wind fresh southeast to northeast; average humidity 73 per cent; barometer, corrected to sea level, at 8 A. M., 30.02; 3 P. M., 30.08.

The temperature yesterday, as recorded by the official thermometer, is shown in the annexed table:

TAMEST SORT OF MAY DAY

SMALL ROW IN PARIS; HARM-LESS BOMB IN ARIES.

Quiet Everywhere Else Despite Huge Demonstrations in Berlin, Rome, London and Madrid—Laborites Orderly; Police Generally Good Natured.

Special Cable Despatches to THE SUN.

PARIS, May 1.—With the exception of one incident the workers celebrated May day peaceably. There were no processions. The proposed mass meeting in the Bois de Boulogne was abandoned, although it was there the only trouble occurred.

Incited by the fanatical Socialist Hervé and some other agitators, two or three hundred hoodlums began breaking down the railings around the pigeon shooting ground. The police and troops instantly tackled the ruffians and after a sharp tussle, in which half a dozen were hurt and a score arrested, the affair ended in shouting.

Troops were posted at several points in the city and cavalry patrolled some of the streets lest the Government's prohibition of demonstrations should be defied, but there was nothing for them to do.

Fear of trouble in the Bois de Boulogne and dull, cold weather spoiled the race meeting at Longchamps, where the receipts from the turnstiles and the pari-mutuel betting were $100,000 less than on the corresponding Sunday last year.

Late to-night the city had resumed its normal appearance, the prefect of police having given orders to clear the streets in a drastic manner. Perhaps the cafes were more crowded than usual with workmen arguing what should have been done but was not done.

So far as reported all demonstrations in the provinces were peaceable, with the exception of those at Arles and Marseilles. A bomb was thrown at the town hall at Arles and considerable damage was done, but nobody was hurt. The notorious anarchist Yvetot was arrested at Marseilles for inciting the striking naval reservists to attack a military patrol.

BERLIN, May 1.—Although about 100,000 persons attended eighty universal suffrage meetings at various halls in the capital to-day, it was more a festival than anything else. No attempt was made to defy the Government's prohibition of processions and outdoor massing of the people. The police avoided affording any provocation, and everything passed off quietly.

Once only did the police interfere and disperse a crowd in a narrow street, but they acted good humoredly and the crowd obeyed them. Crowds were also dispersed in Breslau and Magdeburg, but without violence. Everywhere else the celebrations were uneventful.

ROME, May 1.—The May Day celebrations here were uneventful. One meeting threatened for a while to end in a riot between the Republicans and Socialists, but troops separated them. Rain prevented meetings in the afternoon.

The day was observed as a complete holiday, even by cab drivers and the tramway and newspaper employees.

MADRID, May 1.—There were great demonstrations and parades of workmen here and in the other cities of Spain to-day. All were orderly.

LONDON, May 1.—Some 20,000 Socialists and trade unionists took part in the May Day demonstration, marching in procession with bands and banners from central London to Hyde Park, where speeches were made. Everything was orderly. Indeed, the affair was more like a picnic than a political demonstration.

One feature of the parade was the large number of children taking part. Another was the presence of a delegation of Japanese Socialists.

NO FOREIGN HONORS FOR SWISS.

Journalist and Army Officer Disciplined for Accepting Legion of Honor.

Special Cable Despatches to THE SUN.
PARIS, May 2.—The drastic Swiss Federal laws forbid Swiss citizens holding public positions to receive foreign decorations.

Albert Bonnard, who is director of the Journal de Geneve and also an army officer, has been placed on the retired list, says the Echo de Paris, because he accepted the decoration of the French Legion of Honor.

CAPT. TRACY'S WIFE SUES.

Factory Girl Bride Says Marine Officer Deserted Her.

BOSTON, May 1.—Mildred J. Tracy, the work girl bride of Capt. James Kennedy Tracy, United States Marine Corps, has sued for divorce. In the petition Mrs. Tracy accuses her husband of deserting her while they were living in Brookline three years ago, when he was stationed at the Charleston Navy Yard.

For three years she has not seen him, she says, and during that time she has not received from him one cent for her support.

The romance began in Portsmouth, N. H., where Tracy was stationed. His father, Capt. B. F. Tracy, was a retired navy captain and lived in Portsmouth. Mildred Barutis was one of the belles of the factory district of Portsmouth. She was a shoe worker, 17 years old and of unusual beauty. Lieut. Tracy saw the little factory girl in the street, sought an introduction, got it and within a month was engaged to the girl. His parents opposed the match, but he stuck to the girl and in 1901 was married to her in a Catholic church at Portsmouth by the Rev. Father P. J. Finigan.

At first their married life was unusually happy. The young woman had a remarkable voice and her husband encouraged her to train it. They came to Boston to live and later lived in Brookline. Then Lieut. Tracy was promoted and transferred to the Bremerton naval station in Washington. This was in 1906. According to Mrs. Tracy that was the last she saw of her husband.

Going to Tackle Mount McKinley.

TACOMA, May 1.—Supplies for the Brown-Parker expedition to Mount McKinley were loaded on the steamship Portland here to-day. The party of five men backed by the American Geographic Society will sail next Friday. The purpose is to climb Mount McKinley and search for records which Dr. Cook says he left at the top.

ROOSEVELT SEES REMBRANDT'S

CROWDS SEE AND CHEER HIM IN HAARLEM AND AMSTERDAM.

Colonel Spends Half an Hour Peering Silently at Two Famous Canvases—Van Tromp Indorsed—Dutch Bells and the Turf—Copenhagen Next.

Special Cable Despatches to THE SUN.

AMSTERDAM, May 1.—For the first time since his arrival in Paris, Col. Roosevelt's cavalry coat and sombrero made their reappearance to-day for the automobile trip from The Hague to Amsterdam, but their fame had not reached Holland, for their wearer was not recognized in the villages en route. In Haarlem, however, where the party broke their journey to visit the flower show and to see Frans Hals's pictures in the old town hall, full compensation was made.

The usual crowd had cheered the family on departing from The Hague, and Haarlem took up the ovation, giving the ex-President a rapturous reception. The welcoming speech at the flower show informed him that he was exactly the one hundred thousandth visitor to pass the turnstile. It also suggested the entire removal of the duty on Dutch bulbs for the benefit of Americans, thus enabling them to have as beautiful gardens as those of Holland.

Col. Roosevelt did not refer to this piece of altruism in his reply, although he complimented the Dutch on their ability to combine hard work with beauty and enjoyment.

A silver model of the Pilgrim ship Mayflower was then presented to him. The party visited the town hall after lunch. The square in front of the building was filled with people, who threw flowers at Col. Roosevelt as he ascended the steps. These were afterward carefully rescued as souvenirs by devotees.

The party arrived at Amsterdam about 5 o'clock. One of the largest crowds that have greeted the Colonel on his European trip awaited him in the square outside the imposing Ryks Museum. Here the Burgomaster and the director of the museum showed the party the pick of Rembrandt's works. For full fifteen minutes Col. Roosevelt sat in silent contemplation before the great master's "Night Watch," his largest and most elaborate work, and then for the same period before "The Masters of the Guilds." This half hour was the most peaceful the noted traveler has yet spent on his trip. The other occupants of the gallery sat or stood behind him silent or talking in subdued whispers.

Col. Roosevelt confessed yesterday for the first time to a slight feeling of fatigue, but these thirty minutes seated before the two great masterpieces seemed to reinvigorate him, and with brisker step and brighter eye, but giving no expression to his emotions inspired by the two famous canvases, he rapidly reviewed the rest of the museum, remarking as he was shown Admiral van Tromp's portrait: "That was a fine fellow."

There must have been 5,000 people in the square when Col. Roosevelt left the museum, and the fall of a child nearly caused a disaster. In a moment some thirty people were piled on top of one another, but nobody sustained serious injury.

The party visited another museum and were greeted by another crowd. Then, seated to the full on art, Col. Roosevelt found occasion and dinner at a hotel after facing a third but smaller crowd at the entrance.

The party left at 9 o'clock to-night for Copenhagen.

LEPERS ON A RAMPADE.

Task of Rum Went Ashore at Cape Colony Settlement—Three Deaths Result.

Special Cable Despatches to THE SUN.
CAPE TOWN, May 1.—An extraordinary riot has occurred at the Robben Island leper station.

The lepers found a sixty-four gallon cask of rum that had been washed ashore. They broached it and after drinking greedily started a wild riot.

The officials and police had the greatest difficulty in controlling them, as the law does not allow the authorities to use force in dealing with lepers.

Three of the unfortunates died from the effects of the orgy.

NO SUNDAY REST FOR NEGROES.

Special Court Works All Day in Cuban Conspiracy Cases.

Special Cable Despatches to THE SUN.
HAVANA, May 1.—Notwithstanding the fact that to-day was Sunday the special court investigating the negro conspiracy case worked all day.

Six more arrests have been made.

Prohibition Booms Moonshining.

ATLANTA, May 1.—The report of the internal revenue force for this year, which is being prepared, shows that under prohibition illicit distilling has tripled in the State. Prohibition has made the output of the illicit stills valuable. The moonshiner gets $5 a gallon for stuff he used to sell for $1.50.

The Annual May Sale of Imported & Domestic Lingerie & Undermuslins for Women

at an average saving of at least 1/3

The full force of the importance to you of this yearly event cannot fail to impress itself if you bear in mind that not one garment in the entire assemblage has been purchased in the "open market," but was made to our own order—and to meet our exacting standard. We have given months to the preparation of the collection; months spent in careful selection of materials and trimmings, in supervising the cutting and making.

The styles are new, the proportions generous, the workmanship of uniformly high grade. A special feature—the many reproductions of costly foreign models in all of which have been preserved the beauty and daintiness of the originals.

Gowns Empire or open front models; also round, square or slip-over styles. The materials include French nainsook, crepe cloth, soft-finished cambric or China silk; a large variety of fancy sleeves. The trimmings comprise Val, Cluny, Irish or torchon laces; eyelet or French embroideries; also hemstitched tuckings; finished with wash ribbons.
